Program:

Friday 12/7-2024 1600, the PRS style match starts with a short safety and information brief. This brief is mandatory for all competitors. All competitors are divided in squads, and the members of the squads will remain in this configuration until end of the match. There will be used shooting RO's in all squads. Endex time day one is approx 2200-2300.

Saturday 13/7-2024 0830, day two of the PRS style match starts with a short brief at Thomasheimen, before squads are to transport themselves up to the designated ranges and continue the shooting.

Maximum allowed caliber during main match is, .30 cal, 67mm brass length. 300WM and equivalent. Max 950m/s.

- Ammo count: 170-200 estimated (more info later)
- Max range: 950-1050m approx.
- PRS style shooting

Allowed equipment:

The participants can bring whatever gear they think is suited for the match, and will get a matchbook 1-2 days before match start that states what is allowed per stage etc.

Course:

The most of the stages is in open mountain terrain,
The layout of the stages during the competition will be varied and can be associated in several directions. So here the most complete shooter will get the best out of it. Should you fall through on a stage, you can feel more at home at other stages. After the end of the match, the goal will be to see satisfied participants who feel mastery and enjoyment around the shooting!

To be clear, MSRC 2023 is NOT an 24hour match as original, but is now a two day match.

The participants are to transport themselves to and from two different main fields, but must get between the stages on foot.

Rules:

NPRF baseline rules will be followed.

Additional security rules/guidelines for MSRC will be presented on location July 12th.

Sunday 14/7-19 0800 the ELR competition starts with a match brief for the shooters that wishes to attend. In this match, there are few match rules but the safety rules always apply. The Sunday extra match does not apply to the NPRF series and don't cost anything to attend if you are enlisted for the main PRS match. If you only want to shoot the ELR match, the cost is 300NOK.

You are allowed to use any rifle as long as it is safe to operate. The MD has the right to deny any caliber or ammunition that he suspect will damage the steel targets. (12,7X99 with ball ammo is ok)

You are allowed to use a spotter, or two. Ballistic app and laser range finder is allowed.

You are allowed to use any tripod, bipod and monopod as long as it is safe to operate.

Sunday's «ELR» shooting will offer significantly longer distances as maximum to exploit some of the field's potential.

Ammo count: max 36

Max range: Approx 2300m

Two classes:

- Light: .30 cal and down.
- Heavy: .338 and upwards.
